Download for FREE with Kindle Unlimited This is a 8,000 words CLEAN stand-alone story with an HEA, so no cliff-hangers! Mia had a bad day. It got a lot worse when she was abducted by aliens. After a journey across the galaxy leaving behind everything and everyone she has ever known, her adventures are just beginning. When an alien race has run out of wars to fight, they make their warriors fight for entertainment in the arena. The aliens find Earth women to be particularly attractive. They serve as a fine reward for success in the arena. Mia is not sure she is ready to be a companion for alien champions. From what she has seen and heard, it may be more than she is ready to handle. She discovers someone that is different from the others. Through this new friendship, she finds comfort and hope. She has someone to believe in and someone to root for. Maybe she can find a companion of her own on a distant world and an alien arena. ----- EXCERPT FROM BOOK The attacker lifted his weapon in the air above his head. Mia saw his eyes were no longer red, but a shade of yellow instead. She didn't know what that meant. He drove his blade into the sand inches away from the man on the ground. The Tharloin attacker leaned close blocking the view of the crowd that let out another gasp. Mia could see from the box that he had missed the stab. The man on the ground nodded. Then, he closed his eyes and slumped to his side. The attacker pulled his blade out of the sand and held it over his head. The crowd cheered, thinking they had just witnessed the kill. As they hauled the last man away, the winner lifted his bright white eyes on the box. She expected him to look on them with green, but his eyes didn't change. The slits of his eyes were a little wider than the other Tharloins. His skin was a little darker blue than others she had seen. Mia wondered if that was from days of fighting bare chested in the sun. He looked the women over. His eyes lighted on Mia. She wanted to look away in fear, but her eyes were drawn to him and she couldn't seem to look away at all. He nodded and pointed at her as he dropped his weapon. An attendant pulled her chain and handed her over the railing. The crowd cheered. The warrior took her chain in his fist without a word and led her away. AUTHOR'S NOTE: This is a stand-alone story with an HEA, so no cliff-hangers! Story contains mature themes and language, and is intended for 18+ readers only.
