A large proportion of these scientists and other technical personel tend to have lived a fairly protected life and face a host of new challenges when they opt (voluntarily or otherwise) to go into consultancy. This book is designed to help them, not only iniiially but on the problems which arise from time to time throughout any consultancy practice. The author's wide overseas experience is reflected in the subject matter, so making it appropriate not only for the newcomer, but also for the already established consultant.
